The Moral of the Story is . . . Lessons from Data Breach War Stories

Jennifer C. Archie, Partner, Latham & Watkins LLP, Washington, D.C.

Data breaches are so common and affect nearly every industry, is there anything your company can do to prepare for what are always chaotic and highly fact-specific crises? In this course, you’ll learn the lessons of some data breach cases that can help you protect your company when facing a data breach.

Crisis Management in a Post-#MeToo Environment

J. Gordon Cooney, Jr., Partner, Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP, Philadelphia, PA

Grace E. Speights, Partner, Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP, Washington, D.C.

The #MeToo movement has dramatically raised the stakes for companies facing allegations of workplace sexual harassment, which can quickly turn into a public relations crisis that needs to be managed. This course provides timely, valuable and practical advice for in-house counsel facing the many challenges associated with investigating, defending and managing crises arising from workplace sexual harassment claims.

The Drying of the World: How Will It Affect Your Company?

Buzz Thompson, Of Counsel, O'Melveny & Myers LLP, Silicon Valley, CA

What would your company do if it ran out of water? For many reasons -- including climate change and population growth -- this is not merely a hypothetical but a real risk that your company needs to assess and manage. This course provides the guidance you need to evaluate and address the water risks your company faces while suggesting ways your company may be able to transform water risks into business opportunities.

Depression in the Legal Profession

Joseph Milowic III, Partner, Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP, New York, NY

Experts differ on whether lawyers are more prone to depression than others who work in equally high-stress occupations such as doctors. But one thing is clear: the stigma associated with depression is one of the reasons lawyers may not get help when they need it. Fostering contact among lawyers who have experienced depression reduces that stigma, and in this course, you will meet four such lawyers who will share their stories with you.

Playing With Fire: When Companies Discover Social Media

Carolyn S. Toto, Partner, Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP, Los Angeles, CA

Social media can be a powerful tool for companies to help build relationships with their customers and employees. However, with the benefits of this tool come corresponding risks.
